Getting Your Car Ready For Winter.

It's Fall, and you know what that means? Falling leaves, falling temperatures, and eventually falling snow! October is officially designated as Fall Car Care Month. So, how can you get your vehicle ready for winter?

Regular car maintenance, such as tune-ups, oil changes, air filter maintenance, and proper tire inflation, can save 23 gallons of gasoline per year on average.

Keeping your tires inflated to the proper pressure can improve your gas mileage by around 3%
--saving up to 18 gallons of gasoline per year.

A faulty oxygen sensor can cause too much gas to be used cutting your mileage by up to 40%

Replacing a clogged air filter can improve your car's gas mileage by as much as 10%
--saving up to 50 gallons of gasoline or about three trips to the gas station per year.

Use this checklist to get your car ready for cold days ahead.

1 Fluid Levels
Top off engine oil, power steering, brake fluid, transmission fluid, windshield washer fluid and antifreeze.

2 Hoses and Belts
Look for cracks, fraying or excessive wear, and replace as necessary.

3 Battery
Look for clean, tight, corrosion-free connections and plenty of juice.
Signs of weak battery: dimming headlights or interior lights; power windows that take longer than usual to go up and down.

4 Brakes
Get brake lining, rotors and drums inspected.
Trouble signs: pulling to one side when you hit the brakes, squeaking or grinding noises and a brake pedal that feels too soft.

5 Exhaust System
Look for leaks, damage, and broken supports.

6 Oxygen Sensor
Replace this sensor every 30K to 50K miles.

7 HVAC
Do the heating, ventilation and air conditioning work properly?

8 Schedule a tune-up

9 Steering and Suspension
Check shock absorbers, struts, ball joints, and other structural elements.

10 Tires
Fill tires to optimal psi (pounds per square inch). Check tread and look for wear, bulges, and bald spots. Replace worn tires. Uneven wear could mean you need an alignment.

11 Visibility
Clean wipers and replace worn-out ones. Clean head and tail lights, inside and out.

HOW TO SUPPORT A LOVED ONE WITH BREAST CANCER

Someone is diagnosed with breast cancer every day. The World Health Organization says breast cancer is the most commonly diagnosed cancer among women around the world, as well as a leading cause of cancer death. Unfortunately, roughly half of all breast cancers occur in women with no specific identifiable risk factors beyond age and sex, so there may be no warning signs that a cancer diagnosis is coming. Chances are a newly diagnosed breast cancer patient will need some measure of help and support but may not feel comfortable asking for assistance. Getting help also can be overwhelming for certain individuals. But supportive friends or loved ones can step up to the plate and offer support in various ways.

- Provide meals. Take turns with other friends and family members to prepare and deliver meals. If you don't cook, arrange to have takeout delivered.
 - Go grocery shopping. Help stock the refrigerator with plenty of healthy and convenient foods. While the person battling cancer may experience various degrees of hunger, keeping food available helps other members of the household.
 - Straighten up. Take care of cleaning around the house. You may wash some loads of laundry, vacuum and iron clothes. If budget allows, you can hire a cleaning service to come in once or twice a month for a deep cleaning.
 - Care for the dog. If fatigue makes it challenging for the person battling cancer to take the dog on walks, you can step up and handle dog walking or trips to a dog park.
 - Provide caregivers a break. The primary caregiver will be working overtime to offer support, and you can give that person a much-needed break. Step in to go to doctors' appointments or watch a young child so the caregiver gets a day or two off.
 - Take on chauffeur duty. Take on the task of driving the patient to and from checkups or scans. A friendly face can make a big difference in taming anxiety.
 - Pay bills. Household tasks may seem overwhelming, so you can help manage the finances by paying bills or sorting through mail. If medical paperwork has begun to stack up, you also can organize and sort items of importance.
 - Make home more comfortable. Transform any living spaces, whether they are home or temporary apartments or hotels, with creature comforts. This can include high thread count sheets, newly framed family photos, comfortable pillows and blankets, and more.
 - Sit and listen. Sometimes the greatest comfort can be sitting with and listening to the person who is fighting cancer. Don't offer advice or recommendations unless prompted, but listen to any concerns and offer time and support.
- Support for friends and loved ones after a cancer diagnosis can come in many forms and make a significant difference in people's lives.

It is estimated that more than 200,000 women in the United States will be diagnosed with breast cancer this year, but we find hope in knowing that there are more than 2.9 million breast cancer survivors in the U.S. today.

Great strides have been made in early detection and treatment of breast cancer, and these survivors are living proof.
